Glenda Fredman

“Consultation with Complex Networks: the Personal and the Professional”

Friday 24th April, 2009
9.30 to 4.30

The Mansion House,
Clifton Down,
Bristol BS8 3LJ

£55 per person, inclusive of lunch and refreshments.

Glenda Fredman will address how she uses systemic, social constructionist and appreciative approaches to guide her work with networks of clients and professionals. With examples from her own practice, she will show how she brings large numbers of people together to create therapeutic opportunity for clients and practitioners.

Through role-play and practical exercises participants will have the opportunity to address and develop skills for:

- Preparing for large meetings in order to engage with all present.
- Creating collaboration between people in network meetings.
- Creating a focus for the meeting that respects and hears everyone's perspective.
- Including all voices in the room.

This workshop will address the personal and professional contexts that inform our experience and our emotions in our work with people. Glenda will share some of the methods she has developed with her team to enable practitioners to use our 'selves' as resources to our work with people in large meetings.

For booking details,
see overleaf.

Eileen Jamieson was chair of AFT from 1999 – 2001. This workshop is sponsored by AFT in memory of the work she did to promote and support AFT Branches.
